

Intercultural Skills in University Teaching

(also part of the SU-University Didactics Programme, module: electives of higher education didactics competencies)

Target groups: academic teachers and scientists

Contents: An internationalizing university like Saarland University integrates students and scientists from many countries and cultures. In this workshop we would like to give academic teachers the opportunity to deal with intercultural issues in university (teaching), studies and continued education.

Because it changes university (teaching), studies and continued education, if for example

- native speakers from all regions of the world are potential students or academic teachers.
- teaching, research and study is offered or organized multilingual, in German, English or French.
- diversity becomes a relevant component of a competence-oriented culture of teaching, learning and assessment.
- ...

The workshop would like to invite you to an intercultural training, reflections, exchanges of experiences and skills with an internationally experienced speaker.

Speaker: Dr. Anders Seim, pmc ag, experienced intercultural consultant

Single course, programme, certificate: You can also attend the workshop as an individual seminar regardless of the subsequent certificate. For the full and dedicated attendance of a single course from 5 work units you will receive a competence-based proof of participation from the Division for University Didactics at Saarland University. This workshop is one of the workshops of the module “Electives of Higher Education Didactics Competencies” of the Saarland University’s Certificate of Teaching in Higher Education.

The certificate comprises a total of three modules (modules: core workshops of higher education competencies, electives of higher education competencies, collegial coaching and teaching portfolio) at least 120 work units or at least 3x40 work units.

Programme and Certificate Responsible: Birgit Roßmanith, higher education didactics expert at Saarland University
