The SU-University Didactics Unit (udu) at ZeLL

Since 2008, the SU-University Didactics Unit (udu) at ZeLL has been promoting, developing, and fostering networks for teaching, learning, and continuing education competencies. The programs offered by the udu are open to everyone involved in teaching—faculty members, researchers, students, guest students, student assistants, and others. ... We offer certifiable continuing education events, counseling, coaching, open spaces for discussion, networking, self-assessment, and reflection to foster new ideas and diverse perspectives on effective teaching, studying, and lifelong learning. These skills are highly valued both in higher education institutions and in continuing education programs at non-academic organizations and companies.

1. SU University Didactics Program (for lecturers and researchers) (UD)
2. SU Teaching Assistant and Learning Program (for students, guest students, doctoral candidates without teaching responsibilities, …) (TA-L)
3. University Network Education through Responsibility" (in collaboration with the Chair of Empirical Educational Research)

We offer specific programs and events for lecturers/researchers and students/guest students alike, designed to develop and enhance competencies for successful teaching, studying, and continuing education. These programs allow you to acquire new skills and/or further develop and connect your existing experiences. You can simply participate in individual events and, upon completing events totaling 5 work units or more, receive a meaningful proof of participation. And you can reach the SU University Didactics Certificate as a lecturer, faculty member or researcher, or the SU Teaching Assistant (and Learning) Certificate as a student, guest student, or other participant.
