Saarland University will host the 9th biennial MESEA conference from May 29 to June 1, 2014. The topic of this year's conference is: "Crossing Boundaries in a Post-Ethnic Era – Interdisciplinary Approaches and Negotiations." MESEA, the Society for Multi-Ethnic Studies: Europe and the Americas, was founded in 1998 as a response to challenges in "ethnic studies" in times of globalization.

This year's special focus on "Border Studies" contributes to new discussions and networking over disciplines. MESEA's over 250 members from more than 35 countries as well as the approximately 140 panelists of the 2014 conference reflect this diversity. Panelists come from different disciplines, for example, sociology, history, literary and cultural studies, political science or geography.

The keynote speakers are leading experts from Europe and the United States: Anssi Paasi (University of Oulu, Finland), one of the most prominent border experts in Europe; José David Saldívar (Stanford University), one of the best known border studies scholar in the Americas; Mita Banerjee (Johannes Gutenberg University Mainz), one of Germany's leading experts on ethnic literatures; and Cherríe Moraga and Celia H. Rodríguez, who address borders and border crossings in their theoretical works as well as in their artistic oeuvre.

Chicana writer and playwright Cherríe Moraga (Stanford University) will read from her work on May 30 at 7pm in Saarbruecken's city hall (Rathausfestsaal). On June 1 her performance with Celia Rodríguez (installation visual artist) called "Cruzada: A Xicana Indígena Ceremony of Uncrossing" will combine aspects of keynote, multi-media presentation and performance.

After the conference opening (May 29) there will be a screening of Maurice Fitzpatrick's Translation Revisited, a BBC documentary film on Brian Friel's play Translations. Director Maurice Fitzpatrick will be present and available for questions and discussion after the screening.
